Eleven women will serve their first term in the House starting in 2017: Representatives Regina Barr, Jamie Becker-Finn, Barb Haley, Erin Koegel, Mary Kunesh-Podein, Sandy Layman, Liz Olson, Ilhan Omar, Laurie Pryor, Erin Maye Quade, and Julie Sandstede. One woman will serve her first term in the Senate: Senator Carolaine Laine. (Senator Laine formerly served in the Minnesota House.)

Women Elected to the Minnesota Legislature, General and Special Elections

Women were first elected to the Minnesota Legislature in 1922, two years after women won the right to vote. From 1922 to 1970, the percentage of women in the Legislature was very low, ranging from 0 to 2.5 percent. By 1980, 11.9% of Minnesota's state legislators were women. In the 1996 general election, the percentage of women rose to 30.4%. In the 2006 and 2008 general elections the number of women elected reached a historical high of 70 (34.8%). The 2016 general election resulted in 64 (31.8%) women in the Legislature, a decrease from 68 (33.8%) in 2015.
